Additionally, this symposium will allow collaboration and partnership between surgeons, radiation oncologists, and medical oncologists and primary care providers to provide cancer patients routine survivorship care.

TARGET AUDIENCE

- Primary Care Physicians
- Survivors
- Medical Oncologists
- Radiation Oncologists
- Surgeons

EDUCATIONAL METHOD

The format will include lectures from leaders in each field along with discussion.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVE

- If a patient develops memory problems after chemotherapy, describe common symptoms of “chemobrain” and possible ways to help patients cope and compensate.
- For a patient who is experiencing lymphedema, describe treatments available and know when to refer the patient to a specialist.
- When patients require radiation as part of their cancer treatment plan, be able to list common long-term side effects and possible way to treat them.
- For patients who have difficult transitioning from the cancer patient to the cancer survivor, list common symptoms and resources available to help patients.
- After a patient completes his or her cancer care, describe the best ways to restart physical activity.
