Wayne A. I. Frederick, MD, MBA, is President and Tenured Professor of Surgery at Howard University in Washington, D.C. At the age of 16, he enrolled at Howard University, where he earned a dual Bachelor of Science and Doctor of Medicine degree by the age of 22. He completed surgical residency training at Howard University Hospital. Upon completion of post-doctoral research and surgical oncology fellowships at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center in 2003, Dr. Frederick began his academic career as Assistant Professor in the Department of Surgery and Associate Director of the Carole and Ray Neag Comprehensive Cancer Center at the University of Connecticut.

Since returning to Howard University in 2006, Dr. Frederick has served as Interim President, Provost and Chief Academic Officer, Associate Dean in the College of Medicine, Division Chief in the Department of Surgery, Director of the Cancer Center, and Deputy Provost for Health Sciences, and also earned a Master of Business Administration from Howard. He was elected the 17th President of Howard University in July 2014.

A distinguished researcher and surgeon, Dr. Frederick is the author of numerous peer-reviewed articles, book chapters, abstracts, and editorials. He has received many awards honoring his outstanding scholarship and service. In June 2014, Dr. Frederick was honored with a Congressional citation for his contributions in addressing health disparities among African Americans and historically underrepresented groups. Dr. Frederick’s innovative research and examination of the unconscious bias in academic medicine has been presented to scores of national and international audiences. His research findings recommend changes to the science of teaching, curriculum reform, and inter-professional instruction.

Dr. Wayne A. I. Frederick is a true son of Howard University—a proud and loyal exemplar of the University’s motto, Veritas et Utilitas (Truth and Service).
